Dalby Engine Rebuilders wins BUSINESS OF THE YEAR

DALBY Engine Rebuilders was once again recognised as a Gold Award winner at the 2013 Business Excellence Award.

But this year the company went one better, claiming the most prestigious award of the night – Business of the Year.

Company Director, Cath Celledoni, was honoured to receive an award across all seven judging categories.

“It was unbelievable, I could not believe it. There are so many great businesses in our community and to be recognised as one of the best is a great honour and achievement,” Mrs Celledoni said.

The team at Dalby Engine Rebuilders believe that to provide great customer service you must continually strive for excellence by going the extra mile for all your customers.

From humble beginnings on Loudoun Road in the late 1950’s, Dalby Engine Rebuilders has grown into a well-respected spare parts and engine reconditioning business servicing Dalby and the Western Downs Region.

In 1958, Lindsay Sturgess and Brian Meyers virtually started from ground level, with visions of the future and a small amount of capital.

After gaining experience in their respective fields in Toowoomba and afield, they started to build their own workshop at Loudoun Street (now road), Dalby.

Dalby Engine Rebuilders has always been a family owned and oriented business, that believe by staying privately owned they gain a greater understanding of the needs of their clients and foster growth and improvement by working closely with the community.

For this business it is about being passionate about people and focussing on providing them with not only a great place to work, but supporting, valuing and respecting each other are all areas that play a critical part in the business achieving success.

The key to success lies in the ability to grow and adapt to meet the needs of our ever changing environment,” Mrs Celledoni said.

She said the commitment to the community and the diversity of business in Dalby is what provides strength and growth in this region.

The team at Dalby Engine Rebuilders would like to thank the Dalby Chamber of Commerce, along with the sponsors for the significance they place on the business community.
